EVALUATION

STAGE 7 - EVALUATION

And for what reasons?

An often neglected, but essential element of waterfront development is evaluating whether or not the development has achieved its vision, leading to important insights into the next project idea.

Satisfaction of Vision and Objectives

Vision

Has the project achieved its vision and satisfied its objectives, and targets? What can be done over the course of the development's maintenance schedule to continue to meet these objectives? What can be learned for future waterfront developments?

Where, if any, were compromises to the project's vision and objectives made?

Budget Evaluation

What are the goals of the project over its life-cycle? What short, medium, and long-term maintenance and evaluation is required?

Short term goals Medium term goals Long term goals Has the waterfront development stayed on budget?
What areas of the project were the best value over the course of the waterfront development, in terms of satisfying the project's vision and objectives?

Further Opportunities

What further opportunities are presented by the realisation of this project?
